Appomattox Court House

The Old Court House was the scene of a colorful ceremony Wednesday afternoon, as Mrs. Margaret Sippy took of Roseville, Michigan entered the Park Visitor Center at precisely 2:31 p. m., she was greeted by Park Historian Wesley S. Wolfe who told her she had been chosen to participate in the special observance of the National Park Service "Billionth-Visitor Day".

Park Superintendent Thomas F. Norris, Jr., explained that it is virtually impossible to determine exactly which visitor to the National Park System was actually the Billionth visitor. Statistical records kept by the Service for 58 years do tell us with reasonable accuracy that sometime today the billionth visitor will enter one of our parks. It was therefore decided to select one person, simultaneously, in each of the 192 areas administered by the National Park Service as symbolic of this billionth visit. Choice of the Spybrook Party at Appomattox was based solely on the precise time of their arrival.

Superintendent Norris described the occasin as a significant milestne in the history of the National Park Service. Through the years the service has sought to provide more and better opportunities for Americans to visit and understand these areas which enshrine their great National heritage.

Tuesday's observance of "Billionth-Visitor Day" emphasized the importance of National Parks to all our citizens both here and throughout the world. But our obligation is not to ourselve alone. As we today are the custodians of the past, we must continue to protect these areas for the use and enjoyment of future generations as well.

While it has taken some 58 years to record the first billion visits to our National Park, it is estimated that the second billion will be recorded in eleven years by 1973 and the third in another, eight years.

As guests of park officials the Spybrook Party was taken on a personally conducted tour of the area. Before her departure Mrs. Spybrook was presented with a number of mementoes of the occasion including a certificate naming her as the person selected to represent Appomattox Court House National Historical Park during the "Billionth-Visitor Day" Celebration.

FALLOUT SHELTER

It could save your life

Yellow and black emergency fallout shelter signs are now being displayed in most communities at the end of 1962.

They identify fallout shelter spaces for 50 or more people found in cities and towns across the country as a result of a national civil defense program now directed by the Department of Defense. The signs are or will be stocked with a 14-day supply of food, water and other necessities.

The design and sizing were chosen to be easily seen and identified by persons at a distance.

REVIVAL AT HIXBURG

Dr John B. Cunningham

The Speaker

The Walker's Presbyterian Church at Hixburg will hold its annual series of Revival Services next week, August 26-31. Services will begin each evening at 8:00 o'clock. The guest speaker for the week will be the Rev. John B. Cunningham of Lynchburg.

Dr. Cunningham is no stranger to the people of this area. He served as an evangelist in the Pamplin group of churches for seven years back in the forties, before becoming pastor of the Cascade Presbyterian Church. He has served as pastor of the Cascade Church ever since, as well as serving as Evangelist in a much larger area. Dr. Cunningham has preached in most of the Presbyterian Churches in this area of the state. He has been elected to many important committees in his Presbytery and Synod having served as moderator of Appomattox Presbytery, and is currently the moderator-in-nomination, for the Synod of Virginia. Dr. Cunningham is known as an interesting, able, and inspiring speaker to young and old. All who hear him take away something helpful to their lives.

Special music is being planned for each evening through out the week also, under the direction of Mrs. Walter H. Carson, organist.

The Youth Choir of the Appomattox Court House Church will sing on Sunday night. The Lynchburg Presbyterian orphanage Choir will sing one evening during the week. Dr. Cunningham is the director of this choir. Other soloists and quartets have agreed to sing also.

The members, officers, and the minister, the Rev. Millard G. Stimpson, cordially invite all the members of the community and area to come and share with them in this week of worship services.
